DR. POTTER URGES VOTE FOR PINCHOT TO AID WELFARE

Others Desire to Make Sick
and Needy A Football
of Politics

IS GIVEN ENDORSEMENT

State-Wide Committee of Social Workers Approve Candidate

Dr. Ellen C. Potter, former Secretary of the Department of Welfare of Pennsylvania, yesterday issued the following statement:

"I am sure that those who are interested in the welfare institutions of this State know that I am heart and soul with them. My message to them, therefore, at this time, is to stand by Gifford Pinchot, the Republican nominee for Governor, in the election next Tuesday.

"My years of experience in caring for the sick and needy long ago taught me to beware of those who wish to make the misfortunes and distresses
of our hospitals and welfare institutions the football of politics. When men and women use this subject for political campaign material it shows me that they have not much else to use. I would therefore say to those who have the interests of the hospitals
and welfare institutions at heart to beware of such appeals.

"The newspapers are so full of political discussion at the present time that it would be impossible for me to ask them to use any lengthy statement setting forth the way in which Gifford Pinchot helped the worthy hospitals and welfare institutions during his previous administration as Governor. I will say this, however, and it is the most impressive thing that can briefly be said, that he did a tremendous service for them when he wiped out the system at Harrisburg of making appropriations to such institutions on a political basis.
For generations there had been a 'logrolling' system at Harrisburg, under which worthy institutions got next to nothing for the great services they were rendering the people, and institutions which had only political favoritism to commend them got much more than they were rightly entitled to. It was Mr. Pinchot who stopped that.

"During his first administration, because of the imperative necessity to pay off the $32,000,000 debt which faced the Commonwealth it was necessary for cuts to be made in some cases which those interested did not like. But the fact is that the institutions functioned even better than they had previously. No just and reasonable person can say otherwise.

"Superfluous employees were discharged; food was economized; coal
was not wasted nor was a poor quality
accepted; no longer could gasoline,
whiskey or private rooms be supplied to favored persons, etc., etc., under the new orders. The 'cuts' actually did the institutions good while of course the experience of living within a budget for the first time was a painful process. (So is an operation for appendicitis.)

"The Commonwealth is now in the same strong position in which Mr.
Pinchot left it. I can confidently state, therefore, that when he again becomes Governor Mr. Pinchot will not be forced to practice the same economies
which were forced upon him in his previous term, and that he will do everything possible for the State's welfare institutions and hospitals.

"Everyone who knows him personally, and everyone who is familiar with his career, knows that his first thought is to help the people who need help. It is obvious therefore that he will carry out the policy of generously aiding these institutions, as I have indicated.

"No one could seriously think that he would take any other attitude. Upward of fifty of the leading social service workers of the State already have gone on record in favor of the re-election of Mr. Pinchot, because they know he understands their problem and will deal with it honestly and justly.

"Can there be any greater evidence that statements from his political en-

Hallowe'en Party Held By Members of P. O. of A.

The P. O. of A. Lodge held their regular meeting on Wednesday evening in P. P. A. Hall on Radcliffe street, after which a Hallowe'en party was enjoyed. The members were permitted to bring a friend and there were about fifty people present.

Everyone was masked and prizes
were given to the following people:
Miss Alice Booz, attired in fancy costume; Mrs. Jennie Townsend, who was best impersonator of a man; Mrs. Edith Betz, most comic dressed woman;
Mrs. May Strumfels, original dressed woman.

After the unmasking, all kinds of games were played, followed by refreshments. The affair was in charge of Mrs. Edith Betz and the evening was a very pleasant one for those attending.

Muffett Sisters Hostesses To Number of Friends

Janice and Thomas Muffett, children of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Muffett, Radcliffe street, entertained a number of their friends at their home last evening, in honor of their birthday anniversaries. The affair was in the form of a Hallowe'en party, each guest was asked to mask.

The house was beautifully decorated in the Hallowe'en colors, orange and black, with witches, cats, pumpkins, etc., were seen here and there. The evening was spent playing games.
Mary Muffett also entertained the guests with a tap dance and several songs. Refreshments were enjoyed, after which the children departed for their homes, having had an enjoyable evening. Those present were: Ruth Weik, Marjorie Snook, Margaret
Quinn, Eleanor VanSciver, Margaret
LeCompte, Thelma Weik, Ella Pursell,
Anna Eastlake, Clair and Mary Muf-fett, George Lovett, Walter Zwick, Harlie Davies, Howard Zepp, Albert
Gilbert, Madison Helfert, James Vansant and Stanley Muffett.

HARTZEL MILL WILL BE REBUILT AT ONCE

Structure Was Long A Landmark and Grew With Community

FIRM 70 YEARS OLD

CHALFONT, Oct. 31. — Despite the fact that one of the most disastrous fires in local history completely destroyed their main mill building and probably the largest stock of feeds
and agricultural supplies in the county, the firm of F. D. Hartzel's Sons Company was quick to assure the community and their patrons that the business will go on. Arrangements have been made for new supplies and storage facilities are adequate to care for the community's needs.

Thanks to the heroic work of fire
companies from Chalfont, Doylestown, Lansdale and Hatboro, several buildings were saved, including the coal sheds and lumber yard. The flour machinery and the grist mill were completely demolished.

Chalfont had the distinction of being one of the few remaining towns in this section to boast a flour mill. For a period of 70 years the local establishment has been producing this prime necessity of life and the trade
name "Daisy" has become a household word pretty much over the eastern section of the country.

The mill itself was a landmark and by reason of its having such an important part in the earlier life of the community it assumes a prominent place in local history. It came into being during 1860 when the division of the Union was threatened by civil war and was built by Francis D. Hartzel.
The original building was of stone and frame. In addition to the manufacture of flour which at that time was accomplished on stone burrs, grists were ground and logs sawed, for there was also a saw mill in connection with the property. The old mill dam was located north of the present one in the North Branch Creek on the Sam Martin property.

The early buildings were destroyed by fire along about 1875 to be immediately replaced by the present brick structure. The original business was conducted under the name of F. D.
Hartzel & Son. Later it was taken over by James H. Hartzel and the late
B. Frank Hartzel and the firm name changed to F. D. Hartzel's Sons. The present firm came into being in 1920
and since then the business has been diversified to a considerable extent. In 1924 lumber was added to a line which already included more than 100 various commodities.

It does not require a too vivid imagination for one to picture the earlier life of a community in which there is still standing one of these old mills.
It is easy to harken back to the day of the Conestoga wagon, or to picture the grist mill as the farmers' social center. It is really a big loss to any community which due to economic changes
over which it had but little control has been deprived of these ancient landmarks. For the old mills, nestled snugly in their beautiful valleys,
though their wheels be idle and moss-
covered and broken, are silent reminders not only of the passage of time but the part they played in the upbuilding of the community and the stalwart sons it sent forth to take up the work
of life in other climes and far-off places.

The members of the Hartzel family have always been active in work aimed at improving conditions throughout the community, borough incorporation, fire company, the organization of a bank and a building and loan association as well as an important association are but a few of the many movements to which they have contributed their moral and financial support.

Russell M. Hartzel when questioned as to the firm's plans said that it could not be definitely stated at this time
just what sort of structure would replace the burned one. Several attractive offers of machinery had been received, but as yet no decision has been reached by the firm as to the flour mill. Mr. Hartzel said that one of his chief concerns was for the employees whose means of livelihood had been suddenly taken from them.

TWO REPRESENTATIVE WOMEN TO ACT AS HOSTESSES AT COOKING, HOME-MAKERS' SCHOOL SPONSORED BY THE COURIER

Keen Interest Being Manifested in the School and Indications Point to Capacity Attendance Each One of the Four Evenings—No Tickets Are Required—Admission Free

Two well known women have consented to act as hostesses at the Courier's cooking and home makers' school for the first two evenings. The school is to be held here in St. James's Parish House on the evenings of November 4th, 5th, 6th and 7th.

On the opening night Mrs. William O'Don, Edgely, will be the hostess and on Wednesday evening, Mrs. Frank Lehman, Hostesses for the other two evenings will be announced later.

The willingness of these two representative women of this community to act in the capacity of hostesses only goes to prove the widespread popularity of the movement and the general response with which it is meeting.

If there were no eating—what a different world this would be. Perhaps we would lose some of our keenest
joys, but a so some of our saddest illnesses. That is just another way of saying that many of our ailments come as a result of an abuse of our appetites
—not so much consciously—but through lack of understanding. Only a well-balanced diet makes of our stomach the sweet-tempered, hard working, efficient and retiring organ
that we all covet.

And that brings us to the cooking
school soon to open in Bristol under the auspices of the Courier, with Mrs.
Katherine Delaney of the De Both Home Makers' Schools in charge.

Most of us remember when such words as "vitamin content" and
"calorie value" had no more meaning to us than "starch" or "pursuit plane."
But the world does move and while vitamins and calories were not invented this century, they were discovered,
and their aim in life was laid bare.
The more these little chips were investigated the more important they were discovered to be, and while scientists and physicians did the original exploring it has remained for the housewife to get acquainted with both in a practical manner.

If you think a "balanced ration" is just a lot of nonsense and cling to the old school that taught "what was good enough for grandma is good enough for me" you need blame no one but yourself for a cross husband, ailing babies, big doctor bills, and all those things that once appeared in medical ads, from "spots-before-the-eyes" to
"that-all-gone feeling."

Why not give the stomach a chance.
Almost anyone will admit that bolting
the food and over eating are bad. Now let's go a step further and admit that if the body is beautifully balanced in its physical make-up it is elementary
logic to suppose that we should feed
and build it with a balanced answer to its balanced need.

CATHOLIC DAUGHTERS GIVE HALLOWE'EN PARTY

Affair Very Well Attended in Knights of Columbus
Home

PRIZES ARE AWARDED

Hallowe'en is the season for fun and frolic, for old and young, and last evening the scene in the Knights of Columbus rooms was no exception to the rule when the Catholic Daughters of America held their annual party.

Everything was there to make everybody have a good time. Eighty-one members, friends and relatives
were present, in costume, so varied and original it would be difficult to describe any in particular.

The judges were: the Rev. John Burns, the Rev. John Murray and Mrs.
Catherine Murphy and after many consultations among themselves their decisions were:

Mrs. David Fenton, best dressed;
Mrs. Eli Barnfield, comic; Mrs. Warren
Armstrong, Sr., most original.
Prizes were awarded to these three ladies.

The decorations were in the season's colors, orange and black, crepe paper
streamers with black cats and witches here, there and everywhere. The electric lights were covered with the orange and black shades which cast a mellow light through the room. The two long tables were decorated with strips of the colored paper and the menu of chicken a la king in patty shells, peas, potato chips, rolls, butter, pumpkin pie, with whipped cream and coffee, was delicious, and thoroughly enjoyed by the guests.

To Mrs. Maurice Roche as chairlady
and her committee, Mrs. John Gosline, Mrs. Michael McCole, Mrs. Edward
Ennis, Mrs. Patrick Green, Misses Hannah and Anna Boyce, the members of the Daughters from the third ward,
the credit belongs. Their interest,
their untiring efforts made this party
one long to be remembered.

SOCIAL

A Hallowe'en social will be held tonight in St. Paul's Chapel, Edgely, given by the Ladies' Guild of St. Paul's Church. Come masked. Prizes will be given. Everybody welcome.

No one trained under Miss De Both could abide a dish that didn't look taste and smell delicious. She is ready to admit that almost any food concoction known to modern cookery has its fine points but—she isn't ready to admit you can eat at a single meal any combination, even if your palate doesn't warn. The science of eating is almost as exact as the science of mathematics, once you understand the basic principles, and that doesn't mean she is a faddist. She isn't. She is a

HERE AND THERE IN BUCKS COUNTY TOWNS

Morrisville State Police Search
For Motorist Who Killed
Horse

OTHER COUNTY NOTES

Morrisville State Police are looking for an automobile driver who fatally injured an aged pet horse owned by Malcolm Lee, 70-year-old farmer, of Stony Hill, near Morrisville. Lee un-hitched the horse from a plow and the animal ran into a road. The horse became blinded by the headlights of the car and ran headlong toward the machine. After the horse had been knocked down in the road the driver backed his car and then ran over the body of the animal. Lee says the driver hurried away and he was in-
able to get his license number.

Jenks G. Watson, one of the oldest residents of Bucks county, died at his home at Carversville, yesterday, at the age of 92 years after an illness of a few days. His death was caused by old age. The aged man was able to be about until Monday.

The deceased was a son of the late Samuel and Sarah Watson and was born in the vicinity of Mechanicsville.
When a young man he operated a farm in the vicinity of Dyerstown,
later purchasing a farm in Plumstead township, a short distance north of this village. Mr. Watson resided on this farm until about 25 years ago, when he retired and took up his residence in Carversville, where he since lived.

Mr. Watson's survivors include a son, W. Harry Watson, Doylestown; and three daughters, Mrs. Edward Woodman, Churchville; Mrs. C. Allen
Knight, Mechanicsville, and Miss Helen M. Watson, of Carversville.

One of Bucks county's most prominent residents, James M. Hartzel, 79, died at his home in Chalfont, Wednesday afternoon following a quite lengthy illness that ended in a fatal heart attack. He had been bedfast for several weeks before his death and was not aware of the disastrous fire that destroyed the F. D. Hartzel's Sons Company flour and feed mill here a week ago.

The deceased was born in Upper Salford township, Montgomery county,
the oldest son of Francis D. and Catherine Ann (Shellenberger) Hartzel.
He came to Chalfont seventy years ago and was active in the flour and feed manufacturing business until 1926, when he disposed of the business to the present owners, Harvey S.
Russell M. and Stuart M. Hartzel.

He was elected president of the Chalfont National Bank upon its organization and held that office up until the time of his death. He was a charter member of the Lansdale Trust and Safe Deposit Company, of Lansdale, which later was reorganized as the Citizens' National Bank of Lansdale, and was elected vice-president of that institution. He served in that capacity until the bank merged with the Lansdale National Bank over a year ago.

Mr. Hartzel held the office of tax collector and school director of New Britain township at the same time before Chalfont was incorporated as a borough. He served as chief Burgess of Chalfont for several years and served as president of Borough Council until a few years ago. He was a trustee of the Cedar Crest College, Allentown, and was keenly interested in the activities of his church—formerly serving as deacon and elder of the Hilltown St. Peter's Reformed Church. He was treasurer of the church for many years.

In 1878 Mr. Hartzel married Isabella
J. Frick, daughter of John L. and Susanna (Swartley) Frick, at Doylestown.
The survivors include the widow and three children, Mrs. John C. Frick, Philadelphia; Elsie May Hartzel, of Chalfont, and Mrs. Edwin U. Smiley, of Abington.

DON'T KILL GREBS

Reports have come to hand
that in many cases grebes are being killed for ducks. Grebes are protected throughout the year both by Federal and State laws and there is a penalty for killing any of these birds at any time. Grebes have feet that are lobed, not webbed. The bill is straight and narrow, sometimes curved at the tip, and not broad and curved like that of the ducks. Grebes are commonly known as "Hell divers" or "Dip-pers." The tail of the grebe is so rudimentary that one would think the bird has none at all.
All hunters are asked to use
care when shooting at "ducks"
so as to be sure they don't kill grebes.

SMALL GAME SEASON WILL OPEN TOMORROW

Hunters Are Expected to Be
Out in Full
Force

GAME IS PLENTIFUL

Tomorrow the small game season opens in Pennsylvania. It is expected that many thousands of hunters will be in the woods and fields throughout the State to take advantage of the good shooting which the first day usually affords. Last year Bucks county issued approximately 8,000 resident hunters' licenses. Owing to the fact that Bucks county is considered one of the best pheasant habitats in Pennsylvania, and that it is so easily accessible from Philadelphia, where there are many hunters with not many places to hunt, in their own county, it is expected that a small army of hunters will be trying their marksmanship
on this bird in Bucks county on the opening day.

Mr. Cottontail will also receive his share of gloom because thousands of hunters, especially the old-timers who enjoy the cry of the hounds during the chase, will concentrate their efforts on rabbits.

The squirrel hunter should have good luck, for although there will be a great number of squirrels bagged,
most of the hunters seem to concentrate on pheasants and rabbits, thus leaving the squirrel not quite so molested as he has been in former years.

Occasional coveys of quail should be started as the hunters move across the fields, although the quail is not so very plentiful in this section. Many woodcock should be flushed and this seemingly solitary bird will give the sportsman plenty of grief when they try to shoot it as it darts through the thicket cover as easily as if it were an open field.

The season also opens on the ruffed
grouse, known as the king of the game birds. There is no shooting for this bird or any account in Bucks county but many sportsmen will go to the mountainous sections of the State to get a crack at this fast-flying and hard-to-hit bird during the week of the open season.

The following is a list of the open season on small game:

Ring Neck Pheasant (male only),
bag limits, day 2, season 6, open season, November 1 to 15; Ruffed Grouse,
day 2, season 8, Nov. 1-8; Quail, day
8, season 25, Nov. 1-30; Squirrels, day
6, season 20, Nov. 1-30; Rabbits, day
5, season 20; Nov. 1-30; Jacksnipe, day
20, season unlimited, Oct. 15-Nov. 14;
Woodcock, day 4, season 29, Oct. 15-
Nov. 14; Hungarian Partridge, closed 1930.

BORDENTOWN TO OPPOSE BRISTOL HIGH TOMORROW

By Leon Schiffer

Anxious to renew its rivalry with Bordentown and break last year's deadlock, the Bristol eleven will entertain Bordentown on the local gridiron tomorrow.

In the earlier games of the season the Cardinal and Gray line did not show any particular strength, but with the return of several experienced men to the squad the defense has been strengthened. "Peck" Wright and "Bob" McCurry are among the ones included in this list.

From the start of the season Coach Townsend has built his offense principally around straight football tactics, and it is on these principles that the squad has been drilled continuously in the practice sessions, so that they are now being executed with unusual smoothness. However, variations have been introduced, and the practice sessions during this week were devoted to perfect these newer formations.

Another encouraging feature about the Cardinal and Gray eleven has been the unexpected improvement of the scrubs from last year and the material which has come up from the 1929 freshmen. Early in the season those who watched the team in action were struck by the marked difference in the ability between the first-string regulars and those upon whom the Bristol mentor relied for replacements.

However, as a result of constant grooming, several members of the latter group have come right along and can now alternate with several of the regulars without reducing the power of the team to any noticeable extent.

Although Gallagher and Collins have shown up fairly weak in practice, they will, no doubt, see action. However, they will probably be superseded in the starting line-up by Neindorf and McCurry.

Bristol's complete line against Bordentown will be as follows: ends—Esposito and Dougherty; tackles—Neindorf and McCurry; guards—Britton and Wright; center—Alta. This is a line that will average at least 165 pounds.

In the Cardinal and Gray's backfield against Bordentown's aggregation will be Pico, quarterback; Gaffney and Leighton, halfbacks; and Pete Bornice, fullback.

The team as a whole expects a large crowd since there was no game last week. This week's game starts at 3:45 p. m.

Thousands of Tickets Distributed in Bucks

Desserts are time stealers under the old methods. Often more time and worry is spent over a single dessert than over the rest of the meal—and a dessert should be the simplest of matters. Housewives find desserts give them the opportunity for self expression, the personal touch, the chance for a creative ability.

And right here is a reason for failure. Because there is such a wide diversity of desserts a failure in one is very apt to create a "I-won't-try-that-again" feeling. Instead of mastering the dessert there is a tendency to forget the failure and seek another form of dinner ending. This is bad for the housewife's morale, bad for her interest in cookery, a bad example for the children who absorb all too quickly the "follow-the-line-of-least-resistance" idea and throws the door wide open for evasion of all sorts of responsibilities.

What woman wants to admit she can be "licked" by a pie. But when she fails to go back to that pie-failure and discover why it was a failure that is exactly what she is admitting. That was the theory which lay back of the organization of the De Both Home Makers' Schools—to help eliminate the cause of failure and that is the purpose of Mrs. Katherine Delaney now.

"Think of your meal as the successful assembly of many parts into a smooth-working unit. If there is a botch locate it, right it, triumph over it."

RELIEF FROM CURSE OF CONSTIPATION

A Battle Creek physician says, "Constipation is responsible for more misery than any other cause."

But immediate relief has been found. A tablet called Rexall Orderlies has been discovered. This tablet attracts water from the system into the lazy, dry, evacuating bowel called the colon. The water loosens the dry food waste and causes a gentle, thorough, natural movement without forming a habit or ever increasing the dose.

Stop suffering from constipation. Chew a Rexall Orderlie at night. Next day bright. Get 24 for 25c today at the nearest Rexall Drug Store. Charles I. Bowen.—(Adv.)

DR. POTTER URGES VOTE FOR PINCHOT TO AID WELFARE

Others Desire to Make Sick
and Needy A Football
of Politics

IS GIVEN ENDORSEMENT

State-Wide Committee of So- cial Workers Approve Candidate

Dr. Ellen C. Potter, former Secretary of the Department of Welfare of Pennsylvania, yesterday issued the following statement:

"I am sure that those who are interested in the welfare institutions of Pennsylvania know that I am heart and soul with them. My message to them, therefore, at this time, is to stand by Gifford Pinchot, the Republican nominee for Governor, in the election next Tuesday.

"My years of experience in caring for the sick and needy long ago taught me to beware of those who wish to make the misfortunes and distresses of our hospitals and welfare institutions the football of politics. When men and women use this subject for political campaign material it shows me that they have not much else to use. I would therefore say to those who have the interests of the hospitals and welfare institutions at heart to beware of such appeals.

"The newspapers are so full of political discussion at the present time that it would be impossible for me to ask them to use any lengthy statement setting forth the way in which Gifford Pinchot helped the worthy hospitals and welfare institutions during his previous administration as Governor. I will say this, however, and it is the most impressive thing that can be said, that he did a tremendous service for them when he wiped out the system at Harrisburg of making appropriations to such institutions on a political basis. For generations there had been a 'log-rolling' system at Harrisburg, under which worthy institutions got next to nothing for the great services they were rendering the people, and institutions which had only political favoritism to commend them got much more than they were rightly entitled to. It was Mr. Pinchot who stopped that.

During his first administration, because of the imperative necessity to pay off the $32,000,000 debt which laced the Commonwealth it was necessary for cuts to be made in some cases which those interested did not like. But the fact is that the institutions functioned even better than they had previously. No just and reasonable person can say otherwise.

"Superfluous employees were discharged; food was economized; coal was not wasted nor was a poor quality accepted; no longer could gasoline, whiskey or private rooms be supplied to favored persons, etc., etc., under the new orders. The 'cuts' actually did the institutions good while of course the experience of living within a budget for the first time was a painful process. (So is an operation for appendicitis.)

"The Commonwealth is now in the same strong position in which Mr. Pinchot left it. I can confidently state, therefore, that when he again becomes Governor Mr. Pinchot will not be forced to practice the same economies which were forced upon him in his previous term, and that he will do everything possible for the State's welfare, institutions and hospitals.

"Everyone who knows him personally, and everyone who is familiar with his career, knows that his first thought is to help the people who need help. It is obvious therefore that he will carry out the policy of generously aiding these institutions, as I have indicated.

"No one could seriously think that he would take any other attitude. Upward of fifty of the leading social service workers of the State already have gone on record in favor of the re-election of Mr. Pinchot, because they know he understands their problem and will deal with it honestly and justly.

"Can there be any greater evidence that statements from his political enemies (Continued on Page 3)

HARTZEL MILL WILL BE REBUILT AT ONCE

Structure Was Long A Landmark and Grew With

FIRM 70 YEARS OLD

CHALFONT, Oct. 31. — Despite the fact that one of the most disastrous fires in local history completely destroyed their main mill building and probably the largest stock of feeds and agricultural supplies in the county, the firm of F. D. Hartzel's Sons Company was quick to assure the community and their patrons that the business will go on. Arrangements have been made for new supplies and storage facilities are adequate to care for the community's needs.

Thanks to the heroic work of fire companies from Chalfont, Doylestown, Lansdale and Hatboro, several buildings were saved, including the coal sheds and lumber yard. The flour machinery and the grist mill were completely demolished.

Chalfont had the distinction of being one of the few remaining towns in this section to boast a flour mill. For a period of 70 years the local establishment has been producing this prime necessity of life and the trade name "Daisy" has become a household word pretty much over the eastern section of the country.

The mill itself was a landmark and by reason of its having such an important part in the earlier life of the community it assumes a prominent place in local history. It came into being during 1860 when the division of the Union was threatened by civil war and was built by Francis D. Hartzel. The original building was of stone and frame. In addition to the manufacture of flour which at that time was accomplished on stone burrs, grists were ground and logs sawed, for there was also a saw mill in connection with the property. The old mill dam was located north of the present one in the North Branch Creek on the Sam Martin property.

The early buildings were destroyed by fire along about 1878 to be immediately replaced by the present brick structure. The original business was conducted under the name of F. D. Hartzel & Son. Later it was taken over by James H. Hartzel and the late B. Frank Hartzel and the firm name changed to F. D. Hartzel's Sons. The present firm came into being in 1929 and since then the business has been diversified to a considerable extent. In 1924 lumber was added to a line which already included more than 100 various commodities.

It does not require a too vivid imagination for one to picture the earlier life of a community in which there is still standing one of these old mills. It is easy to harken back to the day of the Conestoga wagon, or to picture the grist mill as the farmers' social center. It is really a big loss to any community which due to economic changes over which it had but little control has been deprived of these ancient landmarks. For the old mills, nestled snugly in their beautiful valleys, though their wheels be idle and moss-covered and broken, are silent reminders not only of the passage of time but the part they played in the upbuilding of the community and the stalwart sons it sent forth to take up the work of life in other climes and far-off places.

The members of the Hartzel family have always been active in work aimed at improving conditions throughout the community, borough incorporation, fire company, the organization of a bank and a building and loan association as well as an important association are but a few of the many movements to which they have contributed their moral and financial support.

Russell M. Hartzel, when questioned as to the firm's plans said that it could not be definitely stated at this time just what sort of structure would replace the burned one. Several attractive offers of machinery had been received, but as yet no decision has been reached by the firm as to the flour mill. Mr. Hartzel said that one of his chief concerns was for the employees whose means of livelihood had been suddenly taken from them.

TWO REPRESENTATIVE WOMEN TO ACT AS HOSTESSES AT COOKING, HOME-MAKERS' SCHOOL SPONSORED BY THE COURIER

Keen Interest Being Manifested in the School and Indications Point to Capacity Attendance Each One of the Four Evenings—No Tickets Are Required—Admission Free

Two well known women have consented to act as hostesses at the Courier's cooking and home makers' school for the first two evenings. The school is to be held here in St. James' Parish House on the evenings of November 4th, 5th, 6th and 7th.

On the opening night Mrs. William O'Dea, Edgely, will be the hostess and on Wednesday evening, Mrs. Frank Lehman, Hostesses for the other two evenings will be announced later.

The willingness of these two representative women of this community to act in the capacity of hostesses only goes to prove the widespread popularity of the movement and the general response with which it is meeting.

If there were no eating—what a different world this would be. Perhaps we would lose some of our keenest joys, but a so some of our saddest. That is just another way of saying that many of us come trooping in as a result of an abuse of our appetites—not so much consciously—but through lack of understanding. Only a well-balanced diet makes of our stomach the sweet-tempered, hard working, efficient and retiring organ that we all covet.

And that brings us to the cooking school soon to open in Bristol under the auspices of the Courier, with Mrs. Katherine Delaney of the De Both Home Makers' Schools in charge.

Most of us remember when such words as "vitamin content" and "calorie value" had no more meaning to us than "static" or "pursuit plane." But the world does move and while vitamins and calories were not invented this century, they were discovered, and their aim in life was laid bare. The more these little chips were investigated the more important they were discovered to be, and while scientists and physicians did the original exploring it has remained for the housewife to get acquainted with both in a practical manner.

If you think a "balanced ration" is just a lot of nonsense and cling to the old school that taught "what was good enough for grandpa is good enough for me" you need blame no one but yourself for a cross husband, ailing babies, big doctor bills, and all those things that once appeared in medical ads, from "spots-before-the-eyes" to "that-all-gone feeling."

Why not give the stomach a chance. Almost anyone will admit that bolting the food and over eating are bad. Now let's go a step further and admit that if the body is beautifully balanced in its physical make-up it is elementary logic to suppose that we should feed and build it with a balanced answer to its balanced need.

PRIZES ARE AWARDED

Hallowe'en is the season for fun and frolic, for old and young, and last evening the scene in the Knights of Columbus rooms was no exception to the rule when the Catholic Daughters of America held their annual party.

Everything was there to make everybody have a good time. Eighty-one members, friends and relatives were present, in costume, so varied and original it would be difficult to describe any in particular.

The judges were: the Rev. John Burns, the Rev. John Murray and Mrs. Catherine Murphy and after many consultations among themselves their decisions were:

Mrs. David Fenton, best dressed; Mrs. Ed Barnfield, comic; Mrs. Warren Armstrong, Sr., most original. Prizes were awarded to these three ladies.

The decorations were in the season's colors, orange and black, crepe paper streamers with black cats and witches here, there and everywhere. The electric lights were covered with the orange and black shades which cast a mellow light through the room. The two long tables were decorated with strips of the colored paper and the menu of chicken a la king in party shells, peas, potato chips, rolls, butter, pumpkin pie, with whipped cream and coffee, was delicious, and thoroughly enjoyed by the guests.

To Mrs. Maurice Roche as chairlady and her committee, Mrs. John Gosline, Mrs. Michael McCole, Mrs. Edward Ennis, Mrs. Patrick Green, Misses Hannah and Anna Boyie, the members of the Daughters from the third ward, the credit belongs. Their interest, their untiring efforts made this party one long to be remembered.

No one trained under Miss De Both could abide a dish that didn't look, taste and smell delicious. Morrisville State Police Search

OTHER COUNTY NOTES

Morrisville State Police are looking for an automobile driver who fatally injured an aged pet horse owned by Malcom Lee, 70-year-old farmer, of Stony Hill, near Morrisville. Lee hitched the horse from a plow and the animal ran into a road. The horse became blinded by the headlights of the car and ran headlong toward the machine. After the horse had been knocked down in the road the driver backed his car and then ran over the body of the animal. Lee says the driver hurried away and he was unable to get his license number.

Jenks G. Watson, one of the oldest residents of Bucks county, died at his home at Carversville, yesterday, at the age of 92 years after an illness of a few days. His death was caused by old age. The aged man was able to be about until Monday.

The deceased was a son of the late Samuel and Sarah Watson and was born in the vicinity of Mechanicsville. When a young man he operated a farm in the vicinity of Dyerstown, later purchasing a farm in Plumstead township, a short distance north of this village. Mr. Watson resided on this farm until about 25 years ago, when he retired and took up his residence in Carversville, where he since lived.

Mr. Watson's survivors include a son, W. Harry Watson, Doylestown; and three daughters, Mrs. Edward Woodman, Churchville; Mrs. C. Allen Knight, Mechanicsville, and Miss Helen M. Watson, of Carversville.

One of Bucks county's most prominent residents, James M. Hartzel, 79, died at his home in Chalfont, Wednesday afternoon following a quite lengthy illness that ended in a fatal heart attack. He had been bedfast for several weeks before his death and was not aware of the disastrous fire that destroyed the F. D. Hartzel's Sons Company flour and feed mill here a week ago.

The deceased was born in Upper Salford township, Montgomery county, the oldest son of Francis D. and Catherine Ann (Shellenberger) Hartzel. He came to Chalfont seventy years ago and was active in the flour and feed manufacturing business until 1926, when he disposed of the business to the present owners, Harvey S. Russell M. and Stuart M. Hartzel.

He was elected president of the Chalfont National Bank upon its organization and held that office up until the time of his death. He was a charter member of the Lansdale Trust and Safe Deposit Company, of Lansdale, which later was reorganized as the Citizens' National Bank of Lansdale, and was elected vice-president of that institution. He served in that capacity until the bank merged with the Lansdale National Bank over a year ago.

Mr. Hartzel held the office of tax collector and school director of New Britain township at the same time before Chalfont was incorporated as a borough. He served as chief Burgess of Chalfont for several years and served as president of Borough Council until a few years ago. He was a trustee of the Cedar Crest College, Allentown, and was keenly interested in the activities of his church—formerly serving as deacon and elder of the Hilltown St. Peter's Reformed Church. He was treasurer of the church for many years.

In 1878 Mr. Hartzel married Isabella J. Frick, daughter of John L. and Susanna (Swartley) Frick, at Doylestown. The survivors include the widow and three children, Mrs. John C. Frick, Philadelphia; Elsie May Hartzel, of Chalfont, and Mrs. Edwin U. Smiley, of Abington.

DON'T KILL GREBES

Reports have come to hand that in many cases grebes are being killed for ducks. Grebes are protected throughout the year both by Federal and State laws and there is a penalty for killing any of these birds at any time. Grebes have feet that are lobed, not webbed. The bill is straight and narrow, sometimes curved at the tip, and not broad and curved like that of the ducks. Grebes are commonly known as "Hell divers" or "Dippers." The tail of the grebe is so rudimentary that one would think the bird has none at all. All hunters are asked to use care when shooting at "ducks," so as to be sure they don't hit grebes.

SMALL GAME SEASON WILL OPEN TOMORROW

Hunters Are Expected to Be
Out in Full

GAME IS PLENTIFUL

Tomorrow the small game season opens in Pennsylvania. It is expected that many thousands of hunters will be in the woods and fields throughout the State to take advantage of the good shooting which the first day usually affords. Last year Bucks county issued approximately 8,000 resident hunters' licenses. Owing to the fact that Bucks county is considered one of the best pheasant habitats in Pennsylvania, and that it is so easily accessible from Philadelphia, where there are many hunters with not many places to hunt, in their own county, it is expected that a small army of hunters will be trying their marksmanship on this bird in Bucks county on the opening day.

Mr. Cottontail will also receive his share of gloom because thousands of hunters, especially the old-timers who enjoy the cry of the hounds during the chase, will concentrate their efforts on rabbits.

The squirrel hunter should have good luck, for although there will be a great number of squirrels bagged, most of the hunters seem to concentrate on pheasants and rabbits, thus leaving the squirrel not quite so molested as he has been in former years.

Occasional coveys of quail should be started as the hunters move across the fields, although the quail is not so very plentiful in this section. Many woodcock should be flushed and this seemingly solitary bird will give the sportsmen plenty of grief when they try to shoot it as it darts through the thickest cover as easily as if it were an open field.

The season also opens on the ruffed grouse, known as the king of the game birds. There is no shooting for this bird of any account in Bucks county but many sportsmen will go to the mountainous sections of the State to get a crack at this fast-flying and hard-to-hit bird during the week of the open season.

The following is a list of the open season on small game:

Ring Neck Pheasant (male only), bag limits, day 2, season 6, open season, November 1 to 15; Ruffed Grouse, day 2, season 8, Nov. 1-30; Quail, day 6, season 20, Nov. 1-30; Squirrels, day 6, season 20, Nov. 1-30; Rabbits, day 5, season 30; Nov. 1-30; Jacksnipe, day 20, season unlimited, Oct. 15-Nov. 14; Woodcock, day 4, season 20, Oct. 15-Nov. 14; Hungarian Partridge, closed 1930.

WANDERER TELLS STUDENTS OF HIS CAREER AND LIFE

Leon Ray Livingston, Traveler and Author, Speaks at Assembly

AN INTERESTING TALK

Has Roamed 520,000 Miles on $7.61, He Tells His Audience

Leon Ray Livingston, traveler, author, and orator, better known as "The A. No. 1 Wanderer," spoke at the Bristol high school assembly period this evening, addressing two groups of students, one at nine o'clock and one at ten. His subject was "Where is My Wandering Boy Tonight?"

Mr. Livingston has had a checkered career, running away from his home in San Francisco when he was 11, years old. He ranged the world over for many years and when he finally returned home, he discovered that in the meanwhile his good parents had died of broken hearts because of his disappearance. He never stopped in his life for more than a day, always leaving behind his sign, "A-No. 1," announcing where he placed date and getting an arrow pointing in the direction of his journey.

Although a rover, Livingston never drank alcohol or tobacco. Over a period of 30 years he roamed 520,000 miles on $7.61 in our own United States and many foreign lands.

This former wanderer has consigned his few remaining years to a not worthy mission. At thousands of churches, school houses, lodges, homes, grange halls, etc., he has delivered his message, "Where is My Wandering Boy Tonight?" to warn America's youth to beware of the fatal "Open Road."

The speaker in his talks has brought out the facts that there are hundreds of thousands of fathers and mothers' hearts broken because no question weighs so heavily upon them as this very one! No one knows the fearful heartache and terrible misery of mind of parents from whose homes promising boys and girls have deserted with none to tell where they are!

Figures indicate that approximately 20,000 boys and 80,000 girls run away from home every year! 35,000 of the boys and 40,000 of the girls are never seen again by their unfortunate parents, who almost invariably quickly die of broken heart because of grief over the missing loved one! Mr. Livingston's talk answered some age-old questions.

Why do they do it? What do they run into? What becomes of them? How do they live? What can be done to keep them from doing it? How can they be restored to their suffering parents? The traveler has gone through it! By actual pitiful experience, he knows every angle of it!

The group of students was told why 60,000 of 400,000 vagabonds have turned to dynamiting safes, robbing banks, holding up gas stations and friendly automobiles, burglarizing school houses and post offices, etc. He also revealed how tramps mark houses where food is furnished, and where they are sent away empty handed. He also showed how the public can easily eliminate all tramps in the course of a few weeks by discriminating between professional vagrants and poor fellows worthy in need of food. He states that more than one-third of all our convicts and almost everybody connected with the under-world, originally were young runaways from home.

Mr. Livingston speaks three languages, English, French and German. He is the author of 12 entertaining books for boys and girls in which he covers the same subjects as in his oration. He is now a man of almost 60, with wavy, gray hair and an engaging twinkle in his clear, blue eyes. He discussed his entire and varied life including his travels abroad.

The former vagabond carries with him a large note book which is filled with the cards of famous men. Each card bears a brief note which attests to the character of "A-No. 1." In this book appear the names of Theodore Roosevelt, William H. Taft, Woodrow Wilson, Admiral Dewey, Thomas A. Edison, Luther Burbank, Jack London and others, together with the signatures of the chiefs of the secret service of almost every railroad in America and other countries.

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 31, 1930
BUY!
Economists and business men have come to the almost unanimous opinion that what is depressing business today is a buyers' strike in which the element of panic shows itself. There is only one remedy for this condition and that is a surge of buying.

"Buy Now" campaigns in process of organization in cities and in whole states recognize these facts and reflect a refusal to let things take their natural course. Men behind these campaigns are the kind of men who go after business, not the kind who wait for business to come to them.
These campaigns are based on the proposition that the public has stopped buying because of fear of unemployment and hard times and the belief that prices will drop still more. Unwittingly, persons who stop buying for these reasons bring about that which they fear. It is well to save something for a rainy day but nothing is so designed to hasten that rainy day as hoarding.

If all who harbor a desire to buy something which they can afford would buy that something now, store counters would be emptied, factories would resume operations to replenish those counters and men and women would return to work in those factories. Nothing is so calculated to bring back prosperity as a little spending.

Extravagance may be partly responsible for the depression, but frugality has greatly aggravated it.
WAR ON UNEMPLOYMENT
Before it was a week old the Federal Committee on Unemployment demonstrated to the satisfaction of the most cynical and skeptical that it will not seek to find a remedy in the adoption of high-sounding resolutions and expressions of sympathy. "Work not words" seems to be its slogan.

The committee acted wisely in the selection of its executive head. Colonel Woods had experience in unemployment relief as police commissioner of New York, as assistant secretary of war in charge of placing demobilized soldiers in industry after the war and as assistant secretary of commerce during the depression of 1921.

Public works are to be pushed so as to provide employment for the greatest possible number. So that to all who ask may be given work, flood control workers are employed three days a week, giving employment to double the number it each had six days' work a week. In this the government is adopting a proved expedient of industry which keeps intact its organization and retains a maximum number of men on part time in periods of curtailed production.

Washington is functioning to forestall an unemployment crisis next winter. But what are the state governments and private industry doing? The Federal Government cannot carry the entire burden. Nation-wide cooperation and coordination are essential.

A little moonlight now and then often marries the best of men.

Jack walked toward the bed. "I can make trouble and I will. What you going to do about it?" "Prove you a liar," Sir George said quietly. "Roberta, get the paper in the right-hand pocket of my coat. If it wasn't burned up."

"It's here," Roberta said meekly. She had a sudden vision—every time she looked at Jack—of what it would be like to go meekly back to the island and Green Bend, and a day or so later see her letters and promises embellishing the front page of the papers. Her father would suffer, and every one would know what a fool she had been.

She opened the coat pocket and took the folded paper out of it. She handed it to Sir George.

He feebly waved it toward Arlett. "Show it to him, Bobbie," he whispered, "and tell him two can play at that game and you were just spoofing this man. You never meant to do it. That is why I followed you."

She stared at him. "Did father send you? Does he know?"

"No," Sir George whispered. "No one sent me. Do you think I'd let you down? Look at the paper."

"But why should you—?" Roberta began and then suddenly conscious of the others, hurriedly unfolded the paper. She looked at it, gasped and turned to him. She opened her mouth to speak, but Sir George put his hand over it. "Give it to the judge," he ordered.

Meekly, and so unlike the Roberta he had known that his heart contracted with pain and tenderness, she took it across to Arlett who, back against the door, surveyed it.

"H'mm!" He looked at Jack. "This here's a perfectly good New Jersey marriage license made out for Roberta MacBeth and Sir George Sandison. Who's Sir George Sandison?"

"What?" Jack came nearer and looked at the paper.

"Sir George!" Roberta cried. He held her hand. "It's quite all right. You see, Jack, there's no question now of a defenseless girl returning home, after a theatrical attempt at elopement, to be covered with shame and confusion while her father's pocketbook is emptied by a man who couldn't possibly marry her. Roberta's been playing you—so that her father might lay hands on you and your gang."

He held Roberta's hand tightly, so that she could not move. The puzzled and watchful judge came forward as the two constables held the door.

"You're bluffing. This girl never intends to marry you."

Sir George laughed. It was a feeble laugh but it irritated Jack. "It's a bluff and you can't bluff me. I've got her letters and my story and I'll—"

He came up against Arlett and the two constables at the door.

"You keep yourself to yourself," Arlett said. "No pushing and shoving until this thing's straight. What do you want done with him, mister? I wouldn't argue with him no longer."

Sir George clung to Roberta's hand, but he refrained from looking at her. Try as Roberta would she could not free her hand.

"Roberta, my dear, Judge Arlett can marry us just as tightly and just as well as any person, and Jack and the constables will be our witnesses. Will you, Roberta?"

He asked it recklessly. Roberta would, of course, refuse and demand to be taken home to her father, but at least it would silence Jack and make any attempt at blackmail impossible.

Roberta hesitated and as she did Jack laughed aloud. "You see!" he said to Arlett. "It's sheer bluff! The girl came with me to marry me and no one else. He can't save her face that way."

Sir George stared straight ahead of him, smiling, waiting.

"Judge Arlett," said Roberta, in a very low voice, "will you marry us now—and do anything you like with that—?" She indicated Jack.

"Sure. We can jail him easy, afterward."

Sir George could not take his eyes from the girl, who did not look at him now. "Roberta!" he murmured but she did not answer. She had thrown her head back and, leaning against the wall, she faced Jack.

Sir George found it hard to keep from pitying Jack. He did not doubt for a moment that to lose Roberta now was a life and death matter to him, but Roberta was too young to understand or be pitiful.

He was so much interested in Jack's plight, he forgot his own.

Jack, who had once loomed important in Roberta's life, was less than nothing now, and knew it. He made a swift leap toward the door, while the constables gaped at Roberta, but Arlett was in his way, ponderous, unmoved and immovable.

"You keep away from that door young man," he said without emotion or excitement. "You're wanted as a witness." He motioned to the younger constable. "Stand between the door and this wildcat. As justice of the peace, young man, I can lock you up, and will do so if there's any more disorderly resistance. Ready, both of you?"

"Oh!" Roberta whispered. Sir George put out his hand. "Not unless you want to, Roberta. If you'd rather wait, I'll take you back to your father. I'll understand."

Jack laughed nervously. "I told you it was a bluff." He turned to the judge and said vehemently, "The girl doesn't want to marry him. This foreign grifter is after her money."

Roberta gave a little gasp. She slid to her knees beside the bed, put her arms about his neck and her lips close to his ear.

"George—do you really love me? Aunt Aggy said—you did."

At the moment, Sir George, dumfounded at Aggy's audacity, could not speak. Then it came to the man suddenly that here was just a bewildered, frightened little red-headed girl. Such a surge of tenderness went through him at the touch of her lips on his ear that his whole body trembled. His eye met hers steadily. Roberta's eyelids drooped.

"Don't be a silly little fox," he said and put a hand on her shoulder. "If this is Aggy's plan how can we go far wrong?"

As he looked at her, he knew instantly that it was no thought of her own dilemma that was causing the girl to turn to him. He doubted if even a fleeting thought that it would silence every slanderous tongue if she was to return to the island as Lady Sandison had crossed her mind. He was hurt and wounded in her defense and Aunt Aggy had said he was dying of love for her, so she was doing wholeheartedly what she could to heal his wounds and his heart.

"All set?" asked Arlett. He indicated Jack to the younger constable. "Hurl the Bad Egg, if he explodes."

"You'll make him sign the certificate, Judge?" Sir George asked. "A photograph of that signature will do away with any blackmailing scheme he has in his dirty mind, and will make him a laughing stock in his own refined circle. If that doesn't remove him from our path I'll take a gun. I'm growing quite American, you see."

"No guns," said Judge Arlett disapprovingly. "I don't hold with them. But I'd offer this dark-complected young fellow the chance to sign and get away while the going's good."

"Jack," Sir George said amiably, "will sign to oblige the lady or I'll be compelled to tell the judge my suspicions as to his complicity with the gang who tried to get MacBeth's payroll."

He paused significantly, and held Roberta's hand tightly to prevent her from speaking, for he saw that to Roberta the knowledge that this man had used her to harm her father was the most overwhelming blow.

Jack looked at them, then at the other three men. "I'll sign," he muttered.

"Ready?" asked Arlett.

CHAPTER XIV

Robert MacBeth was growing anxious. He had been wheeled out to watch the distant fire, but that had long since died down and it grew dark with Roberta and Sir George still missing, and no word from them.

There was much excitement on the part of the guests from New York, because the bridge was gone. There was no direct communication with the other side now, so they must go further down the river and cross at Bridgetown for their return. It meant they must leave earlier. Lady Sandison bustled about, arranging for an early supper, and for a time there was so much hurry and excitement that the absence of daughter and secretary was apparently forgotten.

When they had all gone, Ray Browne had time to wonder why the secretary did not return with his car.

Sir George and Roberta! What did it mean? He glanced at Robert MacBeth sitting silent beside him and tried to guess what he was thinking. They watched the long procession of cars returning from up the river and from watching the fire. Still no word from either Roberta or Sir George.

Browne felt he must make light of the fact that the two had not returned, for Robert MacBeth's sake.

"Something wrong with my car. The little beast is always breaking down," he said, as he went away in one of the MacBeth cars.

We certainly do progress rapidly in some ways. It was only two or three

Two Representative Women To Act As Hostesses At Courier Cooking School

firm believer in the theory that the average mortal can eat a wide variety of foods, provided only that they are properly prepared and wisely balanced. And that is the theory that has popularized the schools with the men as well as the women of the community.

One of the most important branches of the Courier's Cooking and Home Making School will be to impress the need of right food combinations. It so happens that our appetite is so adaptable that we can concoct hundreds upon hundreds of meals, all different, all tasty, all properly balanced as easy as we can concoct unbalanced meals.

Fashions in dress arise from a vanity, justified as a rule—but fashions in food should arise from common sense. A sugar sack will cover one's nakedness and almost any old thing will fill a stomach. But the sugar-sacked one would have a spiritual and mental indigestion and the "any-old-food" eater's troubles will wax many and strong.

"I love this or that but it gives me indigestion," is a wail that is often heard and half the time that same food isn't to blame at all. It is because of other foods we take along with it, whereas if we knew the proper combination we could eat our beloved dish with impunity. The housewife or bachelor girl who attends the sessions of the De Both Home Makers' Schools is going to discover a lot more than how to make delicious foods with a minimum of time, effort and cost.

STATE NEWS

WILKES-BARRE, Oct. 31.—Irrked at questions propounded by Gifford Pinchot, Republican nominee for governor, in his tour of western Pennsylvania counties, John M. Hemphill, Democratic and Liberal gubernatorial nominee, today had left behind him a series of questions aimed, in turn at Pinchot while he continued his campaign jaunt through Luzerne and Monroe counties.

"In his best campaign manner," declared Hemphill, "and with all the dramatics of the old time ham actor, Mr. Pinchot at Johnstown two weeks ago produced a wonderful argument which I quote:

"How many miles of road has Hemphill ever built? Not a single mile to my knowledge. On the other hand, I have built more than 2,000 miles of roads in Pennsylvania during my term as Governor."

"If that is good logic, let's carry it to its logical conclusion. If the largest problem of our people is earning their living and knowing and appreciating the difficulties thereof, I ask him a question. Has he ever earned a living wage for himself or anyone except in government service? I have earned a living for myself and family for years.

"Let us try it again. Since the Governor is Commander-in-Chief of the National Guard I will ask what military service did he ever see that he is fit to be commander-in-chief of our National Guard? Not any to my knowledge. I have, but I am not going to boast about it."

Hemphill also charged the Republican nominee was "constantly advocating unconstitutional legislation and fanatical enactments that any school boy would be too sensible to propose."

"It is no particular compliment to me that the people of Pennsylvania are deciding, in daily mounting proportions, to cast their votes for me," Hemphill averred, "because it is not so much a liking for me as it is a thorough realization on their part that my opponent is thoroughly untrustworthy as a prospective public servant."

LEWISBURG, Oct. 31.—Return of Merle Stonebraker to his wing post on the Bucknell football squad has given the Bison team additional strength for its battle with Penn State here Saturday.

Bob Williams, of Emporium, has been substituting for Stonebraker but the Tyrone lad is regarded as one of the best ends in the East and his presence will be worth much against the Lions. Williams, however, will probably see some service in the clash against the Nittany Lions. The center of the line will be bolstered with Clyde Miller and Louis Mutze, the latter probably taking the role of defensive center.

There is a wholesome respect for Higgins outfit here, but strengthened by the win over Gettysburg last week end, Bucknell figures it to be a fairly even tilt.

NEW KENSINGTON, Oct. 31.—The next time William Plaza goes motor-ing of an evening with his fiancée, he will make sure his car is locked, and locked securely.

It cost William the price of 33 feet of iron fence and a new car the last time the pair drove out.

William got out of the car to buy some cigarettes. Curious, his companion, moved levers, stepped on pedals. The running motor was slipped into gear, the car snorted, leaped through a fence, tore along a couple of lawns and brought up against a concrete wall.

When Plaza ran out to see what it was all about he found his car smashed, his sweetheart slumped in a faint over the steering wheel.

ALLENTOWN, Oct. 31.—A rose garden will be installed in the city's parkway system, if nature lovers here have their way. The city has agreed and a committee has been formed to solicit contributions and blocks of flowers for the garden. The flowers will be cared for by the committee.

WHY YOU

SHOULD USE

KOPPERS

RAINEY-WOOD

COKE

For Heating Your Home

1. More Heat—

No matter how cold the weather, Koppers Coke will give you heat and plenty of it.

2. Quicker Heat—

A touch of the damper starts it. No waiting. No coaxing. Heat comes fast.

3. Steadier Heat—

It's nice, steady heat, too. Heat that keeps every nook and corner warm as toast all day.

4. Costs Less To Buy—

Even though it gives better results, Koppers Coke costs you much less than the solid fuels you burned before.

5. Costs Less To Burn—

It's more economical to burn, too. Altogether you will save at least two dollars out of every ten you used to spend.

6. Fewer Ashes—

You'll be surprised how little waste this improved fuel gives. A little pail holds all the ashes the average family gets in a week.

7. Less Shoveling—

Because it gives less waste, Koppers Coke eliminates most of the shaking, shoveling and carrying out of ashes. Furnace tending is made simple and easy.

8. Saves Your Furnace

Fuels that give a lot of ash fill up the ash pit and shut out the air. Thus grates are damaged. Koppers Coke has so little ash that this danger is practically eliminated. It's so easy to keep the ash pit clean. Use Coke and your furnace will give you better results than ever before.

9. More Carbon—

It's the carbon in fuel that gives heat. And Koppers Coke is almost all carbon. That's why you get more heat for your money.

10. Less Fuel—

Because it gives so much better heat, you'll burn less of Koppers Coke. Thus you save money in two ways—less fuel at less cost.

11. Easy to Handle—

Koppers Coke is so much lighter—so much easier to handle. A child can take care of it.

12. No Soot—

No smoke or soot. Koppers Coke is a clean-burning fuel.

American Frocks and Fabrics Bring Beauty, Charm to Women Everywhere

West and Middle West Leads in Pioneer Work of Making Women Realize, Combination of Beauty and Service in American Modes, Which Far Excel All Imported Fashions.

Fall Fashions in American Velvet

By Alice Alden

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—If the whole world wants American machinery why should not women everywhere want American-made modes? That is what American dress designers are asking themselves now that we are beginning to realize that as far as feminine fashions are concerned, we are fast becoming a designing nation.

Of all the exciting things that have happened this sartorial season none is more exciting than the demand for the magnificent domestic-made velvets that are just now gracing the best people and the best stores. We are wrapping ourselves in our American coats made of American materials with an air of distinction that far outdoes anything shown by the Paris ateliers where women are atmosphere to death and smothered by the protests of high-powdered saleswomen when they timidly protest that a dress is too dear or doesn't suit them. For the French venduse will make a sale if she has to send forth a dowager in a fluff creation designed for a debutante. And clever salespeople in the best shops and most exclusive dressmakers here are making a point of showing their clients only the type of clothes that are going to be a perpetual joy even when their flattering charm is past its first youth. For American designers are designing clothes to give service by weaving into them an unostentatious beauty, that to the woman who has to make a couple of frocks do yeoman service through a season, is richer and rarer than rubies.

A Velvet Season

Paris cables told us that this was to be a velvet season, but American textile manufacturers knew it long before Paris sent us the belated news. For domestic looms have spent millions of dollars during the year to make domestic velvets the finest fabrics ever made, and the results are to be found wherever well dressed women gather in the form of exquisite velvet frocks from American looms made by American houses.

American Dress Centers

Four towns in the West and Middle West are doing the pioneer work of making women American-made conscious. Chicago, St. Louis, Kansas

City and Los Angeles each have become dress centers and their creations are being eagerly watched by Parisian designers, who see in their originality and suitability to women of every dress and type a menace to French styles that is beginning to make itself felt abroad. This season society women, famous actresses of the theatre and the films, are featuring for private and professional wear, frocks made locally by local designers using domestic fabrics.

The new negligees and lounging pajamas are making it easy for the most intense woman to relax and take her beauty rest. And the nicest creations are those that come from the workrooms of American designers, many of whom find that their models are finding their way to the inner sanctums of the Paris stylists to be argued over and probably adapted or copied. One of the greatest designers of lounging pajamas, who has won international recognition for her glamorous creations, is a woman in Kansas City whose house clothes are fast becoming a household word with the smartest women. The American pyja-

ma of striking cut and individual design ought to make home bodies of us all and the fluffy trailing negligee, so beloved of the French dressmakers, is being relegated to the sartorial scrap heap.

Even if we can't all forget the winter by going South and wearing a smartest women. The American pajama and fabric, we can pick out just which model is going to brighten up the sad sea waves next summer. And, perhaps, next year we are going to give Paris an awful jolt with our transparent velvet bathing suits and beach costumes—another domestic inspiration. With all this, it is quite easy to see how American frocks and fabrics are going to play their part in bringing back prosperity and adding new beauty to women everywhere.

POLLYANNA

Laugh and the world laughs with you; weep and you weep your rage.

Neighbor to small boy weeding in garden: "Did your daddy promise you something if you pull all the weeds out of the garden?"

Small Boy: "No he didn't. He promised me something if I didn't."

Son: Dad, what does a better-half mean?

Dad: Just what she says.

BOOHS AND BOOZE

"Booh!" said the playful husband, for the third time that evening, as he met his wife in the darkened hall. This time, however, it happened to be a visiting neighbor lady. "I beg your pardon," he finished, lamely.

"Don't mind him," said the wife. "He's full of 'boohs' tonight."

"I'm used to it," answered the neighbor. "My husband's full of it too, most of the time."

America: A nation which produced the song "Home Sweet Home" and the query, "Where do we go from here?"

He—Do you suppose you will ever marry again?

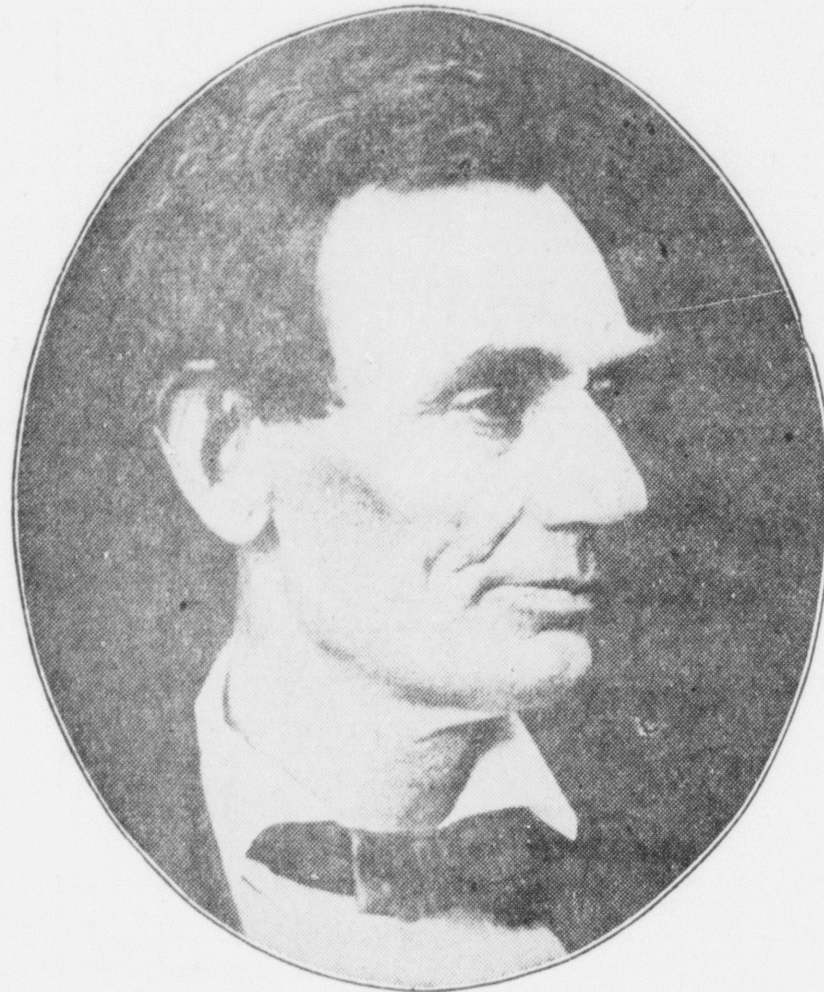

Divorcee—Well, I always have.

SHALL THE PHILADELPHIA ORGANIZATION RULE THIS STATE?

The Philadelphia Vare Organization has for years been a byword for political corruption.

It has almost bankrupted Philadelphia, and for next year the tax rate in that city will be raised—according to the City Controller, more than 25 per cent.

In the absence of William S. Vare, Charles B. Hall dominates the Philadelphia Organization. They ran their own candidate for Governor in the Republican primary, announcing that the purpose of that candidacy was to procure a much larger share of the State's money for projects controlled by Hall, Vare and the Philadelphia Organization.

Defeated in the primary, they attempted to steal the Republican nomination. Defeated again by the Supreme Court, they now turn to a Democrat in their efforts to control the Government of this Commonwealth and the State Treasury, with its accumulating surplus.

Their excuse for bolting the head of the Republican ticket is that Gifford Pinchot is not a good enough Republican for them. Hence they urge their followers to vote for a Democrat.

NO MAN WHO HAS BEEN A REPUBLICAN GOVERNOR OF THIS STATE CAN BE SUCCESSFULLY CHALLENGED AS TO HIS REPUBLICANISM

The Hall-Vare Organization has stepped out of the Republican Party into an alliance with John M. Hemphill. The particulars of the deal between the Hall-Vare Organization and Hemphill may not be known, but no informed citizen believes that Hall and Vare are for Hemphill unless Hemphill is for Hall and Vare.

For eight consecutive years, under Pinchot and Fisher, Pennsylvania has been administered honestly, efficiently and economically in the interest of all the citizens.

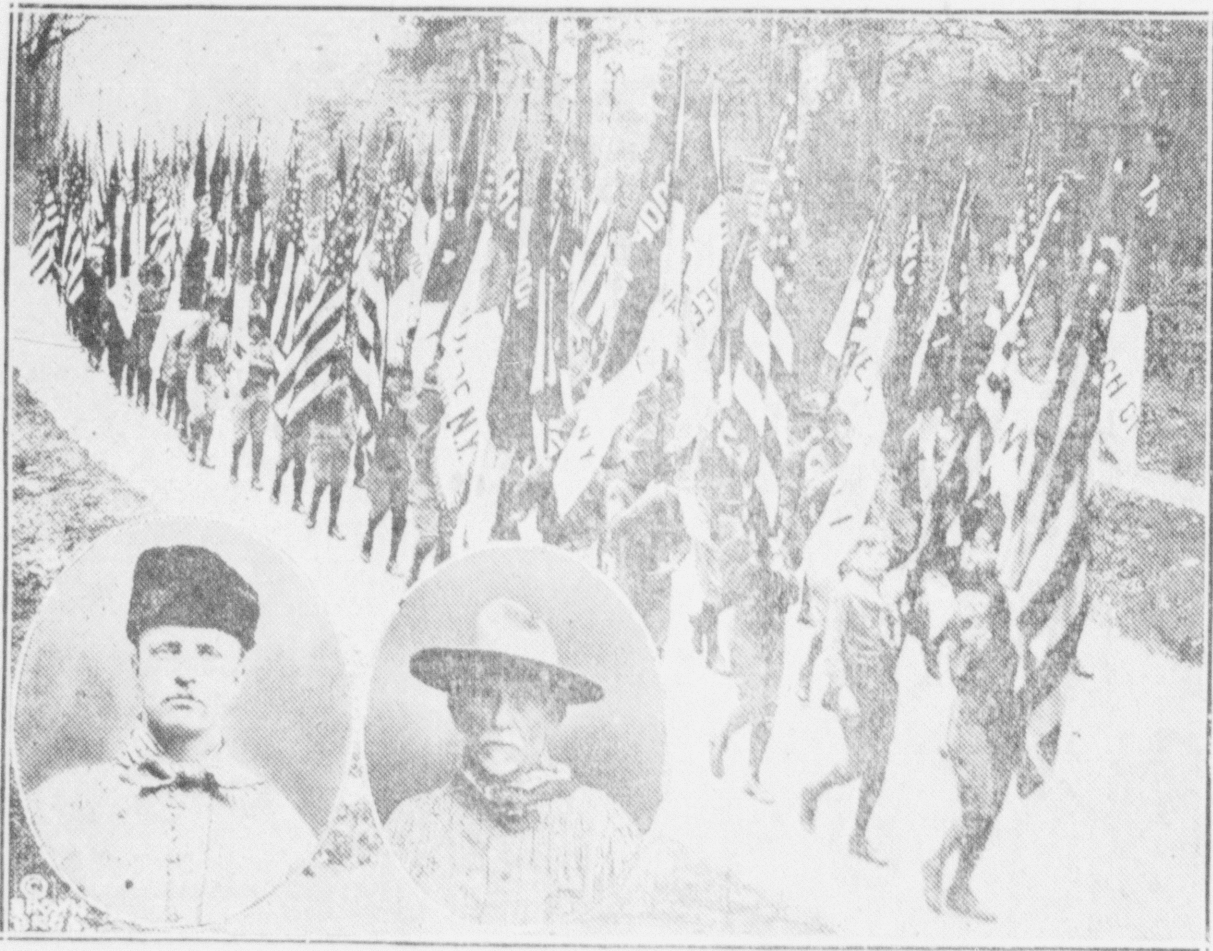

If Hall and the Vare Organization get control of the State, where is the money coming from to meet their promised raids upon the Treasury? It can only come from more State taxes.

There is only one safeguard for the citizens of this Commonwealth—
